508 Compliance:

What it Means in the World of Transparency and FOIA

Like everything else, Section 508 requirements continue to be defined in a changing world. What is 508 compliance? What tools may an agency use to be 508 compliant? What happens when 508 and FOIA requirements intersect? How do we make sure we are producing a 508 compliant FOIA website?

Helen Chamberlain from the U.S. General Services Administration will focus on the big picture, i.e., what is 508 (policy) and what it takes to comply with 508 (requirements). Cris Cline, Section 508 Project Manager for the U.S. Department of State will delve into the nitty gritty aspects of 508 in everyday life, including OCR, tagging, older scanned documents, and problems with PDFs. Both presenters will also address changes coming down the pike to 508.

As the demand for immediate posting of documents released via FOIA requests grows more and more, agencies are faced with this real dilemma of compliance. Come and learn what agencies must do, tools of the trade, and best practices for compliance. These, and other questions, will be answered at the next Food for Thought!
